Dear David:

As you may have recently learned, our foundation is selling some of its numismatic material so as to create a fund for other not-for-profit operators. This is because we have some material which is not necessary for our existing museum or for numismatic research and helpfulness to others doing numismatic research. Our foundation will be in a position for our family to designate other recipients in addition to those recipients who now receive funds from the foundation.

I have located and am sending to you what I think are coin holders which you do not have according to your recent communications with us. I believe you stated in those communications that you did not have the board covers for the original large size. I found two pairs of the large size---the only difference between them being the size of the punched holes in which the rings snap into. I hope these will be a very unusual addition to your collection. We will still keep looking for possible additions to your coin holder collection.

What I suggest is that you may wish to reciprocate by sending to us a donation which will be used for donations to not-for-profit organizations which we may select in the future. This will make everybody happy, and we hope you will be the happiest.

Sincerely,

Dear Eric,

I received your package with the two pair of Beistle covers. That is indeed what they are, the only ones known to me. Even The Beistle Company does not seem to have them in its archive. I am certainly grateful that you saved these items and then passed them on to me. I'm having them photographed in color for my book, which is nearing completion.

Enclosed is a modest donation to the EPNNES.

As for the coins your foundation is selling, I've been involved in the documentation and encapsulation of them since they arrived. There are some really outstanding pieces, my favorites being the two Pan-Pac half dollar patterns sans mintmark. Working with NGC for so many years I've seen most of the known patterns, but these were the first I've seen of their type.

I hope the sale of these coins goes very well for the foundation and its beneficiaries.

Sincerely,
